KAW VALLEY SEEDS PROJECT

Establishing quality LOCAL SEEDS for great LOCAL FOOD!

OUR LOCAL LIVING SEEDS RESERVE

VISION:

The seed of our food belongs to the Creator. The seed is on loan to us to be carried forward for the benefit of All, unto the seventh generation. In these times of climate, economic, social, and spiritual change, a local reserve of living seeds is a necessary legacy we carry forward in our endeavor to flourish in co-creation with all beings.

MISSION:

To create a local living seed reserve ... by fostering a network of people committed to growing, eating, sharing and bartering, buying and selling primary seed varieties of the Kansas River valley. We will facilitate this reserve by fashioning, blending, acquiring, and dispersing locally adapted primary seeds and plant materials for propagation of food, medicinal, and ceremonial plants. These seeds being locally grown and locally proven, in merit.

GOALS:

1. To provide our community access to quality organic, local seeds.
2. To collect and preserve local living primary seeds.
3. To collect and preserve the cultural histories of these seeds.
4. To promote and teach organic seed saving practices.
5. To develop and distribute food seeds that are optimum for our unique Kansas River Valley soils and variable climate.
6. To establish a seed growers network to meet the needs of local gardeners, market gardeners, and small organic farmers.
7. To promote seed security and biodiversity.

WHAT IS?

A Local Living Seed Reserve provides ways to store seeds that are grown and saved locally. By placing our community food seeds in a reserve, we protect and keep alive our vegetable and fruit varieties, that are especially adapted and suited to our unique climate and soils.

Primary Seed is defined as the part of a plant from which a new plant can be grown. This can be generative, such as grain, or vegetative, as a tuber, stem, or bulb. When grown it produces plants like itself. Primary seeds are also called open-pollinated, standard, or non-hybrid. These may be also heirloom, and or heritage. They are not hybrids or genetically modified.

Seed Quality means seed consistency, varietal purity, organic and clean seed, with high germination capacity, and freedom from disease.

How do our seeds enter the Kaw Valley Seeds Project?

- * Anyone may entrust seeds into the Reserve.
- * No hybrid or genetically modified seeds are accepted.
- * Seeds must be grown with organic methods and practices.
- * A short cultural and social history should be included.

How do our seeds go back into our Kaw Valley Local Community?

- * Seeds are offered annually to Project members and the general public.
- * The seed amounts offered are determined by the total amount and quality of our seed in the Project's Reserve.
- * Project members always receive priority access to seeds.
- * Seeds grown from Project's Reserve seeds are labeled, "Kaw Valley Reserve Seeds", and are thusly offered.
- * Seed contributions from outside sources are labeled and offered as "Kaw Valley Trial Seeds".

A SINCERE THANK YOU to all local elders, Central Prairie Seed Exchange and Seed Savers Exchange members, for all their sincere work at saving many of our basic seeds, here in the Central Prairie, doing the "backyard research" that has made their seed available to us today.
